Chapter 4 Overview

"As You Like It" marks a pivotal moment in the narrative. After the boys' first attempt at establishing order on the island, they venture to the mountain in search of fresh water. The journey leads them to a clearing where they encounter a boy with a missing leg, a terrifying realization that the "beast" they have been fearing might not be a mythical creature but a fellow child. The chapter culminates in the discovery of a pig's head mounted on a stick – a symbol that will haunt the boys for the rest of the story.

The setting shifts from the beach to the forest and the mountain, reflecting the boys' increasing isolation from the world they once knew. The language Golding uses here is rich in sensory detail, creating an atmosphere of dread and curiosity that propels the plot forward. The chapter also deepens the internal conflict between the two leadership factions – Ralph's commitment to order and Jack's descent into savagery.
